

Nancy S. Feldmann

Nancy S. Feldmann is the Director of Education at Synap2it Learning Center in Severna Park, MD. She has a B.S. in Education from Indiana University of Pennsylvania with a major in Early Childhood Education. She taught kindergarten, first and second grades, as well as, one year of Special Education throughout her 9 years in the public school system. During her career, she has taken postgraduate Special Education classes, done private tutoring, taught at two Sylvan Learning Centers and participated in SOI (Structure of Intellect) training, is certified for Train-the-Trainer in SOI Basic level and participated in training to implement the Read Naturally reading fluency program.

Nancy began working at Bridges Learning Center of Annapolis in March 1999 as a Program Specialist, became Director in 2000 and took ownership of the Center in 2001. She has been certified through SOI Systems to the Advanced Trainer level which allows her to certify other professionals at the Basic SOI level. In 2006, Bridges Learning Center was renamed to Synap2it Learning Center and relocated to Severna Park. Nancy has worked with hundreds of students and families in the Greater Annapolis area to help learners develop the perceptual and cognitive abilities most foundational to learning. As rewarding as teaching in public schools can be, working with Synap2it Learning Center has been the most rewarding experience she has undertaken thus far in her career. "This is where students learn how to learn, how to be more efficient learners for when they go to school and how to break through the barriers that have been keeping them from learning some thing(s)."
